TO THE THREE CONVENTIONS

ing-The Vote was Representative but Not Heavy on Account of the Absence of Spirited Contests in all but Two Districts-Mr. Brady Beaten in a Close Fight in Triadelphia District.

At the Republican primaries in Ohio At the Republican primates in county, Saturday afternoon, held for the purpose of selecting delegates to the three conventions, state nominating, congressional and county, as large or larger vote was polled than had been expected. In only two districts were there spirited contests for the honor of attending the conventions as delegates. In Triadelphia district Mr. Joseph C. Brady made an active canvass, but was defeated. The day was pleasant, though uncomfortably warm in the afternoon. The results in the several districts of the county will be found below:

A TOWN MOURNED

The Untimely Taking Away of Three Young People-The Funerals of the Victims of the Wellsburg Drowning Oc enred Yesterday. Yesterday in Wellsburg occurred the funerals of the three young people who madeath in the Ohio river while crossing to a fishing camp on the Ohio side a mile above the town, an account of which appeared in Friday's Intelligencer. The body of Miss Kate Roberts, was recovered Saturday night at Marwas recovered Saturday night at Martin's Ferry under the union railway bridge by Hillis Criswell, and that of Mass Alice Baxter, another victim of the tragedy, was recovered in the afternoon of the same day at Prof. Stephenson's Island above the city. The third victim was young James Lloyd, whose body was found early yesterday morning near the upper pumping station of the Wheeling water works. Arthur Roberts, a brother of Miss Roberts, identified young Lloyd's remains by clothing; the body itself was beyond recognition, the exceedingly warm weather having caused speedy decomposition of the remains of the three. A steam yacht started for Wellsburg with Lloyd's body at 7a. m. and arrived there at 11 o'clock, In the morning at 11 o'clock, the funeral of Miss Baxter occurred from her parents' residence in Wellsburg, Rev. Mr. Christman, of the Episcopal church, officiating, assisted by Rev. Mr. Cochran.

The burial of young Lloyd, and Miss officiating, assisted by Rev. Mr. Cochran.

The burial of young Lloyd and Mias Roberts occurred at the same hour, 6 p. m. The services over the former's remains took place at the home of his parents, Rev. Mr. McKee, of the Methodist church, officiating. The funeral of Miss Roberts took place at the same time from the Catholic church, Rev. Father Harris, of Wheeling, and Rev. Father Hurris, of Wheeling, and Rev. Father Duffy, of Wellsburg, having charge. At the entrance to the cemetery the two funeral corteges met and became one. Nearly every man, woman and child in Wellsburg followed to the grave. The town was never stirred up so before,

East of Little Washington on the Baltimore & Ohio Road.

In the Crash that Ensued when the Train Crashed into a Tunnel where Several Tons of Earth Had Fallen-Trains on the Pittsburgh Division were Delayed Eleven Hours-Miraculous Escape of the Engineer and Fireman of the Train.

As the result of a cave-in at tunnel No. 6, better known as the Brady tun-nel on the Baltimore & Ohlo, one mile east of Washington, yesterday morning, a freight conductor, John Conley, was Instantly killed, the track was blocked and trains delayed from eleven to eight hours. Yesterday morning between 4 and I o'clock, when the second section of freight train No. 89, westbound, drawn by engine 1387, in charge of Engineer Charles Heffley and Fireman W. A. Weaver, was nearing the western mouth of the Brady tunnel the en-Charles Helley and Fireman W. A. Weaver, was nearing the western mouth of the Brady tunnel the engineer saw dimly through the smoke from the engine of the first section, that dirt was falling but a few yards ahead. Harely having time to shut off the steam he jumped from the locomotive, which ploughed into the dirt that continued to come down from the roof of the tunnel. From the story of the engineer, who was not injured, it seems that the earth started to fall when the engine was only lifty or sixty feet away. The train was going at fifteen niles per hour. The fireman, seeing the danger ahead, slipped down to the end of the boller and thus escaped without a bruise. John Conley, the conductor of the train, who was riding in the cab, was not so fortunate. Like Heffley, he attempted to jump, but he was caught between the engine after it had left the track, and the stone wall of the tunnel. His death was Instantaneous, his head being mashed flat and his body, from the what up, was crushed and mangled. After the accident, when the frightened crew looked for their companion, his hands and forearms could be plainly seen outstretched above the wrecked engine, while his limp and lifeless body was suspended between the eab and the wall. His feet were fully five feet from the ground. Aid was soon sent for, but it was nearly 11 o'clock before the engine could be moved sufficiently to remove the conductor's remains. He was taken to Gleinwood on an evening train. Mr. Conley lived with his wife at Gleinwood and had no children. He was aged thirty years. Before entering the railroad service his home was at Parkers, on the Baltimore & Ohio main line, in Doddridge county, W. Va.

As to the wreck, besides the engine, the tender was smashed into small sized kindling wood and one end of the first car, was knocked in. Altogether six cars left the track cross the mouth of the tunnel to keep out enger sight seers, who focked to the place by scores.

The engine and cars were righted and soften on the track late yesterday after-

The engine and cars were righted and gotten on the track late yesterday afternoon and everything cleared so trains were able to start out by 5 o'clock, Passenger trains, No. 105 and No. 102, both morning trains, moved out at 5 p. m., after a delay of many hours. Several freight trains wer also gathered in the Washington yard.

The wreck was caused by the giving way of the timbers which supported the earth overhead. The tunnel is arched with stone and brick only a part of theway from either end, the middle section being held up as stated. The timbers have been in use for several years. The earth which fell, amounted to about an ordinary car lond.
